

CO-TEACHING PROGRAMME

MAKING INTERNATIONALISATION POSSIBLE FOR ALL

Our internationalisation strategy is built on inclusion and accessibility. By opening pathways for academic staff to engage with international peers, we create opportunities where both staff and students can grow.

WHAT IS CO-TEACHING?

Co-teaching is a flexible way to connect academic staff from partner universities to collaboratively design and deliver courses to students at both universities in a shared digital classroom. It offers high professional impact by fostering growth, promoting intercultural exchange, and enriching student learning experiences, all while advancing internationalisation in teaching and research without placing significant strain on existing workloads.

WHY JOIN?

FLEXIBLE PATHWAYS & FOUNDATION FOR DEEPER COLLABORATION

- Build lasting global networks that lead to joint research projects, collaborative conferences, co-authored papers, and guest lectureships.
- Flexible formats allow for manageable integration into workloads while delivering high professional impact.
- Enhance teaching and research skills, including intercultural communication and curriculum development with global perspectives.
- Lay the groundwork for long-term collaborations, such as double degree programmes, research consortia, and mobility initiatives.
- Strengthen institutional partnerships through shared projects that scale from small collaborations to deeper, sustained engagement.

OPPORTUNITY FOR STUDENTS

- Gradual exposure to international perspectives builds confidence and intercultural skills.
- Collaborative learning experiences with global peers prepare students for international careers.
- Removes internationalisation worries by fostering approachable, interactive environments.
- Opens doors to exchange programmes, joint projects, and future academic or professional opportunities.

SHARED RESOURCES, MUTUAL BENEFITS

- Utilizes strengths of each partner institution to reduce financial and logistical barriers.
- Creates a platform for sharing expertise, innovative ideas, and best practices.
- Enriches teaching and research through diverse international perspectives.
- Fosters an environment of reciprocal growth and shared success across institutions.

BE PART OF SOMETHING BIGGER

Your participation will help build a culture where internationalisation isn't a luxury—it's an accessible, integral part of academic life, recognizing that not everyone has the same resources or opportunities. Together, we can create a more inclusive and connected academic future, where everyone thrives.
